Well Babe
Back to the old grind, huh? No, I'm praying that everything is well with you and that each new day is exciting for you as you study and the Lord teaches you.

Thanks Her - for a great weekend. I had such a great time with you. I feel so very close to you. This was the hardest time for me to leave you. I know the Lord will see us both through. I watched your plane take off and when quick ran outside. At that point, I just felt really empty - you really are a big part of my life. I realize how much I need you, babe - quite a bit. I drove to Treyler Park and just started running in my shoes I had on + in my jeans with my hair down. It got real dark as I ran and the moon was the only light. I felt better after a while. Thanks for the suggestion. I'm using the pen you gave me, babe - thanks.

I read your writing 'Solitude' again - I love it. It's so beautiful I can just picture the place. Your writing is really good, babe. and none of those corrections were necessary. They took all the poetry out of it. That's what always made me mad about my English class - they always correct your Writing and then you're not expressing it the way you want.

Babe, you are so nice. I was so proud to be with you this weekend. You look so great really irresistible and you understand me so well. Never have I felt so free as this weekend. You make me feel really beautiful and just feeling your acceptance of me makes me feel great. You're very sensitive and loving and I don't want to be with anyone else ever. I'm sure of that.

Being with you this weekend, so many of my prayer requests were answered - like your love for me has grown and we're even closer now than before; you've made lots of friends at school; you have a good roommate; your grades are good. So many things, the Lord has provided and I truly thank Him. I'm anxious to see Him answer other prayers.

Let me know how it went with Cindy on the plane. Must have been hard for you to talk with her. I know I just felt like being alone, too. Every time I think of you - I get tears in my eyes. You were so very sensitive + beautiful.

I really admire you showing your feelings like that - not holding back.

Thank you, babe for my Bible. I will always treasure it and I'll take good care of it. Already I've learned from it. It is such a nice present. Can't thank you enough.

I liked singing with you today in church, babe - like old times - only better.

I needed to write to you, tonight babe.

You are always in my prayers + thoughts. I love you more and more.

Take care babe.
