

Dear Henry.

You can know that for pure right now I'm thinking about you and missing you more than ever. I had such a great vacation time with you - I could really get used to being with you all the time - in fact, I can't wait. I want you to be so very happy always. I'm really excited about our life together - I can hardly imagine how good it's going to be. I want to support all that you do and I really will pray that we'll have a burden for some ministry together. I really want that and I know that there will be something for us to do. I'm expecting such good things - being with you. You are so kind and understanding. I just know I'll be happy with you. This time apart will be the toughest, but we'll be even more prepared and ready for each other. I can just picture it - I'll be such a great day. Babe, believe me, I'm really not worried about all that must get done. I know it's a lot, but I'll all work out and I'm sure I'll enjoy doing it. Don't feel like you're leaving me with a lot to do - you just get done with your semester and come home and marry me! Henry, you're the best thing that ever happened to me, and I love everything about you. You look so good to me + feel good to me + smell good to me + treat me fine. You're my babe. Please, don't worry about me. I'm praying that you'll have a great semester and that you won't have trouble getting up. Boy, would I like to be there to get you up, babe! I love you, Val
